

Copper painting

Painting seed containers with copper is commonly used to avoid the roots twisting. We have designed and installed complete copper painting production lines including painting and drying of the containers. The oldest of the production lines has been up and running for more than 12 years.